Water for Cities in Times of Uncertainty – How Participatory Scenario Planning Contributes to Cities’ Sustainability

9 December 2014, 15:30 – 17:00
EU-Pavilion (Zone F), Room Brussels

LiWa: “Sustainable Water and Wastewater Management in Urban Growth Centres Coping with Climate Change – Concepts for Lima Metropolitana (Peru) – Lima Water” is a successful German-Peruvian research project. Good practices and pilot measures for Lima and beyond in the field of Sustainable Water and Wastewater Management under Climate Change will be presented. Experts and stakeholders will introduce the LiWa-Action Plan 2040, its recommendations for metropolitan policy makers and implications for urban planning strategies.

Presentations by Peruvian and German representatives will be followed by discussions with the audience and by a “networking event” (finger food and beverages).

Panelists include a representative of the German Embassy in Peru, Hartmut Schug (on behalf of Federal Ministry of Education and Research, Germany), Prof. Eduardo Calvo (San Marcos University, Lima), Liliana Miranda (Foro Ciudades para la Vida) and Ana María Acevedo (FOVIDA, Fomento de la Vida).
